Building Project Will Start Today

Preliminary work will be started today in the first large scale housing project of the postwar period in Cumberland when the Cumberland Improvement Company begins to build eleven homes in LaVale.

William P. Roeder has been given the contract to construct a road through LaVale terrace on the right side of Route 40 opposite the state police barracks. The houses will be erected in the area, now orchard land, according to priorities obtained by Miss Marie K. Holzhau and D. Clifford Goodfellow, company representatives.

Two stone houses of five and six rooms respectively will be the first dwellings to be built. They will be offered for sale at prices ranging from $7,500 to $8,000. The other houses planned will be bungalows and two-story structures of various types of architecture.

E. Lester Muller, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, said yesterday that the construction of fifty houses in the Cumberland area had been authorized several months ago, when wartime restrictions were still in effect, and that only twenty-one priorities had been issued.

Two were for homes to be rented and nineteen were for owner occupancy, he said, but only four dwellings were actually started. Four other applications were incomplete, Muller added.

The state director said that on October 15 wartime restrictions will be lifted, and that after that date the greatest opportunity in the history of home construction and allied industries should be opened up.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO CONTRIBUTE TO WAR MEMORIAL

The Allegheny County War Memorial Committee is soliciting the aid of the citizens of the county in liquidating the expense of the memorial to the heroes of World War II. The memorial is located in the rotunda of the city hall in Cumberland.

According to John Park, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, the War Memorial committee intends to function until the names of all men and women from Allegheny county, who have served in the armed forces from Dec. 7, 1941 to V-J day, have been listed on the honor roll. At the present time there are 12,000 names listed in addition to the names on the supreme sacrifice panel.

Park says a total of $3,800 has been raised and applied toward the cost of the honor roll. Of this amount $2,300 has been contributed by the school children of Allegheny county; $600 by the City of Cumberland and the balance by public-spirited citizens and service organizations of the county.

Two Cold Storage Locker Plants Are Planned in City

According to announcements made over the weekend Cumberland will soon have two cold storage locker plants. They will be operated by James L. Messick, of the Co-operative Ice and Fuel Company and Virgil H. Ruppenthal of the Ruppenthal Music Service.

Messick stated that work will begin on his plant at 451 Frederick street about Oct. 15, and that he plans to erect a one-story concrete and steel building 54 by 100 feet for use as a locker storage and ice manufacturing plant. Messick said the name of the firm will be changed to the Co-operative Ice and Cold Storage Company.

Plans call for an expenditure of about $18,000 for machinery and $7,000 in the building. The contract for the concrete block work has been awarded to Allen M. Sell. Seven hundred lockers are planned.

The application for construction of the plant was denied by the city engineer and Zoning Appeals board, but on an appeal the order was granted in circuit court.

Ruppenthal plans to operate his plant, along with his music business, in the old Blaul building, 446 North Mechanic street. He has secured the necessary occupancy permit and plans to spend $13,000 remodeling the building. He said a one-story loading and unloading building will also be erected. Contracts have been awarded to Donald McGill and M. M. Ward.

Plans call for the installation of an elevator in the building and the erection of a fence around the property.

Classes in Farm Wiring Planned

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Oct. 7.—Feeling that it is necessary that farmers have some information on electric wiring before they can make efficient plans for installing farm wiring systems, John H. Carter, county agent, has planned four meetings in the county in areas where electric line extensions have been completed.

The purpose of the meetings, according to Carter, is to assist farmers with problems of farm wiring and electric appliances.

The meetings will be held Monday, October 8, Red Oak school, 8 p. m.; Tuesday, October 9, Oakland high school, 8 p. m.; Wednesday, October 10, at home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stanton, Mars Hill, 2 p. m.; New Germany school, 8 p. m.

Plan Annual Dinner
The annual achievement dinner of the Garrett county youth council is to be held Friday, October 12, at the Reformed church in Grantsville, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

The theme of the program will be "Garrett County Youth Looks Ahead." Talks will be made by Walter W. Dawson, Oakland attorney, and Milo S. Downey, state boys' club leader, College Park.

Merlin Gnezy, president of the older youth group which is sponsored by the extension service, will act as toastmaster.

There will be special music. The 4-H club girls' chorus and Bertman Michael, Pinzel, will sing; Susanna Porter and Mary C. Fraley, Oakland, will give a duet, and the latter also will play a cello solo.

Service Notes
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. DeWitt, Sang Run, recently heard from their son, T-5 Edward C. DeWitt, of the Eight Hundred Twenty-ninth amphibious truck company in Yokohama, Japan. He was one of two men in an advanced landing party and was the first to drive an amphibious truck from the ship into Japan. DeWitt saw action in Europe and was sent directly from that theater to the Pacific area.

Y-2-William Landon, Jr. is now attached to an LSM (landing ship, medium) in the Pacific fleet. In the last six months he has covered 40,000 miles, bringing cargo from the states to Guam and Saipan troops and cargo between those islands and Pearl Harbor. Landon is secretary to the captain and executive officer and maintains a personnel accounting system of the men on board. He is also editor of the "Whisperer," a weekly newspaper. Yeoman Landon is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Landon, Sr.

Last March he was married in Chicago to the former Marilyn Anne Torrence, who resides at Mt. Lake Park with his parents.

Three Garrett county servicemen have been reported en route to their homes. Sgt. Robert T. Hoffman, army postal service, left China several days ago en route to India and the United States. Sgt. Robert Stanton with air corps in the Philippines, has left there for the east coast, and Maurice Brookhart, storekeeper in the navy, who has been stationed in the Panama canal zone, was scheduled to arrive in Miami, Fla., in a few days. Their wives are residents of Oakland.

Francis H. Ruge Is Commended
Francis H. Ruge, Frostburg, district game warden of Garrett county, was recently complimented by Richard T. Norris, chief deputy game warden, for meritorious achievement.

Ruge's September report was prepared in a special bulletin and recorded for outstanding performance during the month of September. Ruge was sent to Garrett county two years ago from Allegany county after District Wardens George B. Shields and Lloyd W. Cook entered the armed services.

During the last year Garrett county was the leading county in the state for game law enforcement. Due to Garrett being the most mountainous region in the state, it is considered the most difficult to police and contains more than one-half of Maryland's deer population.

Lloyd Cook was recently discharged from the army and will return to active duty again in Garrett county. George Shields, a captain in the army, is still serving with the army of occupation in Europe.

Citation elected Thomas Elias, incumbent, president; William Thomas, vice president; Mrs. G. G. Townsend, incumbent, treasurer, and Mrs. Edna Griffith, secretary. Thursday, Robert Karlova, W. H. Lemmert, Jack Palmer and Olen Savage were appointed a committee to arrange for Christmas decorations in the business district. Opening and closing dates will be arranged at the next meeting.

Mt. Chapter, No. 15, Order of the Eastern Star, will entertain Wednesday evening for the officers of the grand chapter, and the Past Matrons and Past Patronesses Association of Western Maryland. Refreshments will be served, following a special program.

The Frostburg Rifle and Pistol club will hold its annual election of officers, Tuesday at 7 p. m. at a meeting at the rifle range, Hoffman road.

Ridgeley Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F. will hold a special meeting Monday evening. Mrs. Bertha Hughes, Baltimore, state instructor, and members of the Adam Thompson Lodge, Lonaconing, will attend.

Ray C. Burg Is Named Legion Head in W. Va.

Piedmont Man Elected State Commander at Annual Convention

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 7 (AP)

The West Virginia American Legion, which unanimously passed a resolution advocating a universal military training program, elected Ray C. Burg, of Piedmont, as the new department commander today before adjournment of the twenty-seventh annual convention in Charleston.

Burg succeeds Dr. P. E. Kercheval of Kingwood. The Piedmont veteran had been serving as chairman of the state membership department.

The legionnaires, with a number of World War II veterans casting noisy votes of approval, urged the West Virginia delegation in Congress to support military training legislation which would provide for one-year duty with the armed forces for youths 18 years of age.

The resolution was one of several hundred considered by the three-day convention.

Burg, a past commander of Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52, Piedmont, has also served as first and third vice commander of the state department of the American Legion.

He is a member of Aerie No. 707, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Piedmont, and served as an air raid warden in the tri-towns district in recent years.

Before coming to Piedmont in 1924, Burg was employed as a buyer for Gimble Brothers, Philadelphia, in the auto accessories department. For the past twenty years he has operated a paint and wallpaper store in Piedmont.

He and his wife, Mrs. Flora Barkburg, a native of Piedmont, reside on Ashfield street. Their son, Claude, lives in Pittsburgh. Burg's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Burg, is also a Piedmont resident.

Timely Suggestion
By Chairman Tait

IMPELLED REASONS are listed in a circular letter just sent to public party leaders throughout the state by Galen L. Tait, state chairman, why members of the party should look to the addition of voters through the filing of their Declaration of Intentions between now and the fifth of the coming November. The Declaration, which is merely that of intention to become citizens, must be filed by that time in order to validate eligibility to vote in the 1948 election.

Tait gives these reasons for securing this vote in his usual scintillating and pungent manner. "The new Washington administration," he says, "is not easy to ride bareback, standing one foot upon a steady southern conservative horse and the other upon a pitching northern radical and city boss piebald pony. This divergent position seems bound to bring Republican gains in the 1946 elections to the United States House and Senate."

At the same election, we also choose in Maryland a governor, an attorney general, a comptroller, a full legislature and all county and some city officials. Our most eligible nominees should be selected all along the line.

Our Maryland political opposition is riding for a fall. Among helpful factors is our Maryland political opposition's continued allegiance to New Deal heresies; to the discredited domestic edition of the late president and to the second edition, unabridged and expanded, announced by the present president. The reindocination and re-fresher courses held recently by President Truman at Jefferson Island, Tait's letter continues, "were dutifully attended by Maryland opposition leaders who desire voters' election approval next year. President Truman's course cannot explain away why New Deal spending policies failed to cure the Roosevelt depression, and unemployment from 1932 to 1941, which it took a Second World War to end."

Wherefore, Republican leaders and workers are urged to continue the onward march of the party in Maryland begun in 1942, continued in 1943 and advanced in 1944 to 48.1 per cent as compared with forty-two per cent of the whole state vote polled in 1940, representing the best percentage advance in 1944 than in any border or northern state.

This is sound and timely advice since the party must gain enough votes to go over the fifty per cent mark and it should seize upon every legitimate opportunity to make legitimate opportunity to make the accretion, which could be achieved by seeing to it that the new voters of the state inclined toward Republican policies and ideals are made eligible for the voting lists through the filing of their Declaration of Intentions.

No Radical Departure
In Navy Reshuffling

A LAYMAN is perhaps, poorly qualified to appraise the reorganization of the navy's top command which President Truman has just ordered. To judge the merits of a reshuffle, which includes abolition of the position of commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet and transfer of its functions to the chief of naval operations, one needs an expert knowledge of how the navy is run.

It can be said, however, that the proposal marks no radical departure from the setup which functioned magnificently during the greater part of the war. The fact that there were two separate offices made little difference as Fleet Adm. Ernest J. King held both posts.

This has naturally left the public with a rather vague idea of what the separate functions of the two offices are. As fleet commander-in-chief Adm. King acted as "the principal naval adviser to the president" and held command of all fleets, sea-going forces and shore establishments. As chief of naval operations he was responsible for the readiness and logistical support of the operating forces of the navy and had authority to co-ordinate the navy's bureaus and offices.

Whether these functions can be combined successfully in the future depends somewhat on whether other men can be found capable of carrying this double load. However, it would be just as well to wait for the report of the special board, headed by Undersecretary Bard, which has been assigned the task of drawing up a specific plan of reorganization based on the executive order.

In the meantime Adm. King will carry on and this gives the nation positive assurance that naval affairs will be conducted as ably as in the past.

A Masterly Job
By MacArthur

EVERY DAY General MacArthur's ability to run Japan is being exhibited anew. In all his dealings with the defeated enemy the general is showing the same cool-headed judgment and the same uncanny talent for getting maximum results with a minimum amount of force that he did in his military campaigns.

Wherever possible he has let the Japanese themselves shoulder the burden of carrying out the surrender terms. The commies in this country thought they saw an opportunity in this circumstance to create the impression that his occupation policy was soft. But the moment the Japanese stepped out of line, General MacArthur has cracked down hard and promptly.

A fair example of how this policy works out is provided by the steps the general has taken to insure that Japan gets the freedom of speech and press called for in the Potsdam Declaration. It would have been impossibly difficult for the occupation forces to take over the publication or editing of all Japanese newspapers. But when Japanese editors began to misuse their freedom by printing anti-American propaganda, the general promptly whipped them into line. And when the Japanese government attempted to bar publication of the interviews the emperor gave to two American newspaper correspondents, Gen. MacArthur cracked down again by ordering the elimination of Japanese censorship of all kinds and the repeal of all laws controlling the written or spoken word.

In these, as in a dozen other instances, Gen. MacArthur has succeeded in getting what he wants with a rare economy of effort. Instead of making the mistake of trying to accomplish everything at once, he has moved only when it was necessary to end a masterly job that promises to accomplish all occupation aims with a minimum of time and cost.

Research Is Now
A Major Industry

CONSUMERS know that in normal times improvements are continually appearing in products which they purchase and they are aware of the fact that the coming years will see greater transformation in many lines. But it is not often that the average buyer thinks of the fact that industrial research, which makes these improvements possible, is now one of the major industries in America.

Its growth between the two world wars was tremendous, as is shown by the figures. In 1920, according to a publication of the National Association of Manufacturers, the sum of $2,900,000 was spent on industrial research in America. In 1940, expenditures had reached $23,400,000. The NAM publication, "Industry's Views on Leadership in Industrial Research," predicts that the postwar growth of industrial research will be even more rapid than in the twenty-year period cited.

Improvements in automobiles, radios, washing machines, refrigerators, plastics and chemical processes, it said, will make prewar achievements obsolete and provide thousands of jobs in existing industries and in new ones. It is the view of the association that scientific research will play a dominating role in the coming years in providing not only more employment but higher incomes and better and cheaper goods and services.

The association has a few suggestions for fostering research on a greater scale and it is probable that many people will be inclined to agree. They include improvement in the patent system; provision for deducting research expenditures from income tax returns and an easing of the shortage of technical personnel in staff laboratories.

Of course, some persons who view research as making for unemployment will object to any income tax benefit for that work, but those who realize that research makes for new industries and new jobs will look upon such tax privilege as a small concession, especially since research aids consumers generally. When the armed services release many chemists and chemical engineers now in their ranks, the shortage of laboratory men will be eased. As for the patent system suggestion, it is generally agreed that there is room for improvement in the field.

CHOOSE YOUR ROAD
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Nothing stimulates the smoldering fires of a human being like self-reliance. The mind is made to glow from it. Every faculty is lighted into flame. A man thus faces his task with a warm heart and a thoroughly live purpose.

Who does not admire the son who tells his father: "You made your success. You selected your road. I will make my own success. I will choose my own road. I will brand my own life."

Self-selection and self-discipline are the keys to a thrilling and useful experience.

Not only should a man choose his own road, but he should know why he does it. Blind selection can only mean a blind road in the end. And wasted effort and time, at that. We all feel good when we know we are on the right road—and know that we are headed for a destination for which we have planned.

Definiteness of aim excuses many a blunder and many a failure. People in middle life, happy because of accumulated achievement, present a patina of experience that is the envy of the wanderer searching hopelessly for any road to take.

Biography and autobiography are useful textbooks because they are so filled with illustrations of roads taken by the alert, the ambitious, the courageous, and the never-say-die. Like Longfellow's inspiring poem, they picture the "footprints" of intrepid men.

The easiest road is usually the longest. The right road is often the hardest, the most discouraging, and the one most beset with pitfalls—but the safest in the end. It develops more man!

Choose your own road. Map your own route. Then it will be your journey all the way. Every thrill, every experience, every discovery, will be yours and yours alone. It will give you something to tell, something to envelop you with pride, something to round you out.

People who choose their own roads are always able to think themselves out if they choose the wrong one now and then!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Shake-up by Forrestal Breaks Powerful Navy Clique, Gives Reserves a Chance

By DREW PEARSON

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.—Navy insiders are hoping for a new deal regarding discharges, recognition of reserves and other navy injustices, following the shake-up in the navy's Bureau of Personnel and the impending exit of navy czar Adm. Ernest King. In fact, some fresh air already has blown into the Navy department.

To get the full picture of what's happening, it's necessary to realize that for about five years the secretary of the navy has chiefly been the performing puppet of hard-boiled, high-handed Adm. Ernest King. The late secretary of the navy, Frank Knox, was at sword's points with King most of the time. The admirals would meet in formal session with him, show him a few routine cables and then adjourn.

Later, King and his close associates would handle the really important cables, which neither Knox nor Under Secretary James Forrestal knew existed.

Adm. King pulled his own Annapolis classmates all around him. He formed the most powerful clique the navy has ever seen, with no one able to penetrate it, least of all the secretary of the navy. The older men of King's time at Annapolis (he is 65) got the chief plums, and the younger men bore the brunt of the fighting. Antagonism against King was especially bitter among Annapolis men between the classes of 1917 to 1933.

Navy Storm Breaks

With the end of the war, however, the storm broke. Reserve officers and regular navy officers found strict censorship lifted and began to speak out.

Long before this, however, some of the younger officers on Secretary Forrestal's staff had tipped him off as to what was going on. They told him that the important telegrams were not being shown him and look them over. Forrestal did, and from that time on, he has had more to say about running the navy. The man who handled promotions, transfers and discharges for King was Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Naval Personnel or "BUPERS." If you control "BUPERS," you can pretty much dominate the navy. And between them, King and Jacobs did. But the end of the war caught both King and Jacobs completely off-guard. They had never expected it so soon.

In fact they were making all preparations for a full-scale invasion of Japan this fall. Furthermore, King did not want to see the navy reduced to anywhere near its peacetime size, so was the last man to want to speed naval discharges.

Forrestal Gets Tough

It was at about this point that Jim Forrestal, for the most part a meek and mild little man, began to get tough. Though he had been wise to King for a long time, he had been handicapped by the fact that King was the special pet of FDR, and the late president considered it his job to run the navy. Forrestal was almost helpless.

With Truman, however, it was different. Truman not only believed in each cabinet member's being responsible for his own department, but he also knew something about the way Adm. King had ridden rough shod over the civilian secretaries of the navy. So the first move made by Secretary Forrestal was to remove Adm. Jacobs from the navy with the key to promotions, transfers and discharges. Jacobs never wanted to go. He had a fine house at the naval hospital supplied him by the government, together with a couple of Filipino servants. However he had no choice in the matter.

At first a special job was created for Jacobs. He was to be a full admiral with the magnificent title of "Inspector General of the Pacific." By this time, however, Forrestal was really feeling his oats. He was determined to run the navy himself. And public criticism against Jacobs's slow discharge system strengthened Forrestal's hand. He took away the glittering job in the Pacific and reduced Jacobs to the humdrum chore of running the Bremerton naval base near Seattle, Washington.

Furthermore, Forrestal brought into the navy a man who does not play on Adm. King's team. Adm. Lou Denfeld, and made him chief of personnel. King kicked like a Missouri mule, but Forrestal overrode him.

The Navy's Eisenhower

Then, to make matters worse,

Forrestal brought in as Denfeld's assistant, Capt. John Gingrich, another man who does not play on King's team.

Gingrich's career, in a way, might be compared to that of Gen. Eisenhower. Like Eisenhower, he is the product of the Kansas prairies. Born in Dodge City, Kan., he was graduated from Annapolis and did a great job in the war as commander of the cruiser Pittsburgh. It was Gingrich who largely towed the flaming carrier Franklin out of danger, incidentally covering up some glaring mistakes by other commanders which have never leaked out.

It was Gingrich who nursed the Pittsburgh all the way across the Pacific when 100 feet of her bow was torn off by a typhoon—once again covering up some faulty construction which the navy didn't want advertised.

Gingrich "Fired"

But, somewhat like Eisenhower, who was fired by Gen. MacArthur in Manila in 1938, Gingrich was "fired."

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The atomic age was given an earth-shaking blow the other night when the Crosby Research Foundation reported it had perfected a defense against the atom bomb. Hollywood immediately classified this news as the greatest victory of man over science since Greer Garson discovered radium.

The Crosby foundation, whose president is Larry Crosby, brother of Bing, was working on a permanent cure for the elimination of Bing's bad race horses when it found the answer to radio activity. While Bing is inactive from radio reports are that the foundation was aided in its work by the writings of Albert Einstein, of Princeton. Professor Karl Compton, of M. I. T., and Barney Desn, a political writer at Paramount.

The news touched off a feverish burst of activity among the vocalists. Sinatra immediately tried to harness lightning and was last seen heading for Hollywood mountain with a kite on one hand and a big iron key in the other. Perry Como hurried his staff into the intricate problem of what makes wheels go backward in moving pictures, while Andy Russell rushed work on his paper for the Mount Wilson observatory on "when you get holes in your socks, where do the pieces go?"

Reaction in world capitals was immediate; Washington was thrilled. London was delighted and in Moscow Stalin said "Drozhky" that's Russian for "Molotov starts singing lessons tomorrow."

(Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

By Adm. King. As a reward for his heroism, he was relegated to the sidelines, removed from command of the Pittsburgh, and given the innocuous job of chief of personnel at Miami, Fla. Gingrich had been offered several important jobs by admirals in the Pacific, but King "sent him to Liberia" instead.

At this point, however, Secretary Forrestal stepped in. He ordered young Capt. Gingrich back to Washington as deputy chief of the powerful Bureau of Personnel.

The mothers, wives and sweethearts of navy men have a lot to be thankful for as a result of this transfer. Both Denfeld and Gingrich, though Annapolis graduates, believed in recognizing reserves, and understand the problems of navy men. There should be a new hurry-up of navy discharges as a result.

Truman's Inaction
In 'Phone Stoppage
Case Is Deplored

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(P)—Is the Truman administration going to become known as the one that just "misses the boat" when crises develop?

The president has made a good record to date in taking over the problems inherited from the preceding administration, and critics have not been able to point to a single major blunder until the stoppage of long-distance telephone service occurred this week.

Although fully warned that the stoppage was coming, the Truman administration allowed it to happen. The seriousness of such an incident cannot be exaggerated. To stop the Nation's telephone service for several hours is a demoralizing blow to communications. It means that countless numbers of persons, especially in rural districts where there are no dial phones, were subjected to hazards the true extent of which may never be properly appraised because of the absence of data. Probably the national government isn't going to collect or broadcast the news of the damage done to property or the lives lost through failure to get accident cases to hospitals on time.

Congress To Blame Also

For this tragic occurrence, however, not only is the president but so also is the Congress to blame. The American people are being given an exhibition of indifference to their welfare which knows no parallel in recent history.

If the telephone service can be cut off for five or six hours, so can the electric power service and other facilities necessary for the maintenance of food distribution and public health. What kind of a disaster must happen before the Truman administration will act? Evidently it does not feel any sense of responsibility for these occurrences or it would have acted to prevent this work stoppage.

The issue happens to be simple. The telephone workers were demonstrating against what they termed was a palpable effort on the part of a trial examiner of the National Labor Relations Board to force them to become a part of a

CIO union. The matter had not been reviewed by the board itself but the telephone workers' union insists that in previous cases the so-called independent unions had been given short shrift at the hands of the National Labor Relations Board, so there was every reason to believe that the same thing would happen to the examiner's report. The government itself is thus

Maj. Lyem Cites Acute Shortages in German Cities

Local CAP Commander Reports on Special Mission to ETO

Lack of housing, coal and raw materials are the most urgent shortages in Germany at the present time, according to Maj. Arthur Lyem, local Civilian Air Patrol squadron commander who returned to this country recently after spending four months in Europe on special intelligence work for the War and State departments.

Maj. Lyem said that he traveled over 20,000 miles in army transport planes, jeep and staff car, visiting England and European countries. He was unable to discuss the nature of his mission, pending permission from government authorities.

"Germany is totally defeated, both from military and economic standpoints," Maj. Lyem said. "It is impossible to realize the thoroughness of Allied bombings without visiting the cities. Transportation and communication facilities have been destroyed, and the highways are full of homeless children, women and old men, trying to find a place to live."

German Co-operation Cited

Maj. Lyem said that the Germans are co-operating with occupation forces, but he said that there are no smiles on their faces. With regard to underground activities against the Allies, he warned that liberated Nazi prisoners are potentially dangerous because they may join secret enemy organizations.

Few industries are still operating, and the only communication facilities are those set up by the army, such as field telephone systems and radios. Maj. Lyem said no railroads are in operation; water and electricity services are out of order. Many are living in the ruins of bombed cities; and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Organization has just begun the tremendous task of feeding, clothing and housing thousands of displaced persons, including Germans, Czechs and Poles.

"I carried my own water supply, with kerosene tablets to purify water for drinking," Maj. Lyem stated. "I stayed at army posts during the trip, although my headquarters were in London."

While in Bremen he tried to contact Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland, but discovered that Col. Millholland had left for the United States by boat two days earlier. The only Cumberlander Maj. Lyem met during his trip was Sgt. Paul Adams, who is stationed at an airfield in England with the army transport command.

Maj. Lyem crossed the Atlantic to Ireland on the Capetown Clipper, and made the return flight from Ireland to Newfoundland on the Atlantic Clipper in fifteen hours. He landed at LaGuardia field, N. Y., Tuesday, and went to Washington before returning to Cumberland Wednesday.

Visited Irish Castle

"Last week at this time I was staying at the Duraven Arms, a guest of house of Castle Adare near Limerick in the southeastern part of Ireland," Maj. Lyem said. "Our takeoff for the return trip was delayed by bad weather, and the Clipper passengers were accommodated at the guest house."

"Castle Adare is about 300 years old, and it is located in a beautiful part of Ireland about forty miles from the sea. The castle is built of stone, with towers and a terrace which resembles that of the palace at Versailles. The King of England's best race horses are kept in the castle stables, and the country is famous for fox hunting meets. We spent two days there before the weather cleared sufficiently for the Clipper to take off from the bay at Foyes."

Maj. Lyem said that he plans to "take a rest" before resuming command of Squadron 331, CAP, which has been commanded in his absence by First Lt. G. Wyatt Breneman.

Sgt. Curtis Hickie To Be Discharged

Staff Sgt. Curtis L. Hickie, 25, a former employee in the circulation and advertising departments of the Times and Alleganian Company, came home last night to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Hickie, 1510 Frederick street extended, after serving eighteen months in the European and Mediterranean theaters.

Sgt. Hickie, who has ninety-five points to his credit, will be discharged at Fort George G. Meade Friday. While overseas he served with the Four Hundred Forty-second troop carrier group of the Ninth air force, and took part in airborne operations in Normandy, Southern France, Holland and the Rhineland as radio operator on a C-47 transport plane.

A graduate of Allegany high school, Sgt. Hickie was employed by the Times and Alleganian Company for two years before entering the army October 19, 1942. He trained at Scott field, Ill., and Pope field, N. C., before going overseas.

His brother, George, William Hickie, technician fourth grade, is stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., with a medical training battalion.

Heavy Property Loss Is Blamed On Carelessness

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Comments on Fire Prevention Week

In spite of the excellent record made by the salvage committee in the collection of waste paper, a recent check of a number of houses in Cumberland showed great quantities of waste paper stored in basements. H. W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said last night in commenting on fire prevention week which started yesterday.

Smith said that "we, at home, through our own carelessness during this year, have destroyed by fire property of greater value than Japan was able to destroy through her frantic attempts to drop fire upon us."

At the rate we are going, 1945 will be a record breaker. Smith said. The loss in dollars and cents will amount to 466 million dollars.

"That's nine times the value of all the property in the city limits of Cumberland, and remember, the loss in money is nothing compared to the loss of ten thousand lives which will occur in 1945," Smith said.

Smith said that the "tragic part of this story is that these enormous losses in property and life are due largely to carelessness. The great number of fires occur in the home. During the past year 400,000 fires occurred in dwelling houses, originating largely from imperfect use of electrical equipment and smoking, all items which can very easily be checked by any householder."

Pfc. Dale Fuller Describes Life With Occupation Forces in Japan

Local Soldier Stationed with Medical Outfit on Honshu Island

A Cumberland soldier who went overseas early in August with a medical detachment of the Twenty-seventh division is now stationed at Gotemba on Honshu Island, Japan, with the occupation forces.

He is Pfc. Dale Fuller, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Fuller, 420 Beal street. In a recent letter to his parents, Pfc. Fuller described his experiences since landing on the Japanese home island, stating that he is doing well.

"Our group of forty men flew up to a C-54," Pfc. Fuller wrote. "We spanned the 700-mile stretch in about four hours and set down at Asugi airdrome, ten or fifteen miles from Yokohama. While waiting on the field, we talked to American prisoners of war, most of whom had been interned from three to four years. The majority had been taken captive on Bataan. Several hundred of them were to be evacuated from Japan by air."

Describing the liberated men, Pfc. Fuller wrote: "They all suffered from acute malnutrition. Their eyes were glassy and dull; they were anemic. Their bones protruded through their skin. They were thin and their heads seemed abnormally large for their withered frames. They said that at times since then, the Bataan death march had seemed soft in comparison."

"Several Jap kids were working about the field and I'm sure that if there had been no MP's around, the prisoners would have torn those Japs apart with their bare hands. I'm for limb. Such a hate as was in their eyes is something that can't easily be forgotten."

For the first few days after their arrival, Pfc. Fuller and his outfit were billeted at a former army barracks near the small village of Ayase. They wandered about the town, visiting houses, stores, shrines and farms.

Visits Jap Police Station
A friend and I visited the Jap police station," he wrote. "We traded cigarettes—they like our much better than their own. We also gave them some hard tack candy from our rations. They obviously hadn't tasted any for quite some time and enjoyed it. When we left, they brought us fresh red tomatoes from their garden. They bowed low and grinned a toothy grin."

"At another place a woman brought out tea to us. She served it on a blue plate in little china teacups. The tea was weak green and very hot. It was not strong enough to be good."

"Everywhere the 'Gooks' were asking us into their homes to drink sake with them. 'Gook' is the name that we call every Oriental. They're very seldom referred to as Japs."

"Many of the Japs hid when we walked near their houses, or walked in another direction when we needed them. They are evidently terrified of us. We carry on conversation with our English-Japanese handbooks, and in pidgin English. Some of the villagers can speak English."

In the army since last January, Pfc. Fuller trained at Camp Wheeler, Ga., before his assignment to overseas duty.

Two Cows Hit by Car On Mt. Savage Road
Occupants of a car driven by Margaret V. Beverlin, 21, Corriganville, which crashed against two cows on the Mt. Savage road yesterday at 1:30 p. m., escaped injury, but the front of the machine was badly smashed and one of the two cows had to be destroyed as a result of injuries.

Investigator Harry Holsinger, who investigated for state police, said the Beverlin car was negotiating a curve in the road near the stone quarry when it struck two cows owned by Thomas Burkley, Home-wood.

It was necessary to destroy one of the cows after the animal's leg was broken by the impact, the trooper said.
